

THE AMERICAN CIVIL WAR MUSEUM

ACWM TEACHERS INSTITUTE

“Worth A Thousand Words”

June 11-12, 2024

Join a two-day workshop that offers an interdisciplinary approach to teaching the Civil War. This workshop includes instruction time, breakout sessions, museum exploration, and a field trip to a local site. This two-day institute is free and lunch is provided each day.

At the end of the institute, teachers will receive a certificate of completion for 14 hours of instruction, an informational packet, and a $50 gift card to be used for the purchase of classroom supplies.

Who Should Apply?

We are currently accepting applications from K-12 educators in Lynchburg, VA, and the surrounding counties of Amherst, Appomattox, Bedford, and Campbell, regardless of whether they teach in a public, private, or home environment.

How to Apply?

Visit acwm.org/learn/institutes-workshops/ and submit a completed application through the Google Form and email a personal essay explaining why you want to attend, how you'll contribute, and what you hope to learn to khancock@acwm.org.

Trevor Steinbach

On Day 1, learn how science can be integrated into the history curriculum as Trevor Steinbach, President of the Society of Civil War Surgeons, explores Civil War Medicine.

Tanya Anderson

On Day 2, get insights from young adult author Tanya Anderson on how to help students relate to the past through her works on the experiences of young people during the Civil War.